Greetings:

KCC Japan Education Exchange is pleased to announce a position as Patsy Cooper Gottschalk Teacher of English at Kobe College High School in Nishinomiya, Japan beginning in April 2008.

Kobe College was founded by Congregational missionaries in 1875 for the education of young Japanese women and is located in Nishinomiya, a suburb of Kobe and Osaka. It offers high quality education based on Christian principles and is well known as one of the best women's schools in Japan. In 2005, Its Junior High School division was recognized by the Japanese Ministry of Education and Science for offering one of the very top English language programs in Japanese junior high schools.

KCC Japan Education Exchange (KCC-JEE) is a non-profit organization located in Chicago, Illinois, which has worked with Kobe College for 86 years to promote cross-cultural education. For over 50 years, we have recruited and sent teachers of English to the high school division. Our program of recruiting teachers is well established. KCC-JEE is committed to providing support to our recruits to ensure that they have a successful and fulfilling experience. Other KCC-JEE sponsored programs include student and faculty exchange programs, graduate fellowships, high school essay contests, and symposia.

We would very much appreciate your posting the enclosed announcement and making the application information available to those who would be interested in applying for this position. Applicants may expect to hear from KCC-JEE after the initial review of all applications is completed. Interviews will be held in August, 2007.

Please do not hesitate to contact the KCC-JEE office should you have any questions.

Sincerely,

Fumiyo Young, Chair
KCC-Japan Education Exchange Teacher Recruitment Committee
